r u but the price was to much the upgrade is 25% less than the full version more than 50% less than home and student version the trial was good for 3 days and had 5 worksheets 2 pages in 1 i couldn't do the business card design and the report was too wide for my need it only works on a 10.0 screen and the draw is slow and the microsoft word is like a very simple word processor i don't think it was designed to be used for what i needed so i returned it. microsoft office 2010 professional plus pt pt r u but the price was to much the upgrade is 25% less than the full version more than 50% less than home and student version the trial was good for 3 days and had 5 worksheets 2 pages in 1 i couldn't do the business card design and the report was too wide for my need it only works on a 10.0 screen and the draw is slow and the microsoft word is like a very simple word processor i don't think it was designed to be used for what i needed so i returned it.. I just downloaded the trial of office 2010 pro as well, but when I am trying to install the office programme it says that there is not enough free hard disk space on the system I am using. I tried to install it in a dual boot system, but I don't have enough free space in my C drive. How can I free up more space, or is it because of the Windows 7 operating system? Thank you for your comment. The issue is that you have no storage space left on your computer's hard drive. You must install the program onto a separate drive, such as a USB flash drive. If you have not done this, then you should make a backup of your important files, and then remove the program and restore the files. This is the most common error that you can face, I can solve this problem by removing or disabling the Anti-Spyware application. You should make sure to check your boot parameters before you start the download so that you won't 82157476af
